Hotel registers are beginning to swell again, showing people elsewhere are overcoming fears concerning danrivals from various parts of the country at one hotel on Sunday. The influx of people from Louisiana points continues, and there are additional assurances that within the next ten days there will be a relaxation of quarantines so far as they affect passenger traffic. Four New Orleans theaters opened on Sunday, giving day and evening performances. There was standing room only at each of them. There were no admissions, no deaths and no discharges reported by the emergency hospital for the twenty-four hours ending early Monday. The hospital is caring for two more people from Rosetta, Miss., in addition to the family sent there last week. The latest arrivals from the infected town got here Sunday and went voluntarily to the hospital to serve the fixe-day period of detention.

Although Mississippi continues rigid quarantine in spite of distribution of infection of that state, an effort is to be made to reopen communication with the gulf coast under conditions. Familles of many New Orleans business men are still on the coast and anxious to have intercourse with the city. Dr. White considers little danger will be involved in the resumption of travel between New Orleans and Missiasippi

For the state during the twenty-four hours ending with Sunday night two deaths were reported—one at Lake Providence and the other at Alexandria. The latter is reported as Ren Harris, a tramp, who had a typical Harris is from Philadelphia, case. where his family is reported to be of fine standing.

On the report of two of its inmates suffering with yellow fever the big Seamen's Bethel will transfer its Saturday night concert to another hall. A careful diagnoses, however, shows the institution not infected, the cases of the two patients being malaria.

The emergency hospital at Wildwood plantation, in Jefferson parish, just above the city, is now in operation. There are nineteen cases of yellow fever there, but with physicians and trained nurses constantly in attendance it is thought the mortality will be small.

Up to noon Monday there were seven new cases and no deaths.
